'I Could Never Be A Stay-At-Home Mum'

She's five months pregnant with her second child – and more ambitious than ever. Look sits down with Frankie Bridge...

Considering that only weeks ago Frankie Bridge was bedridden with hyperemesis gravidarum (the severe morning sickness that the Duchess of Cambridge also suffered from), the Saturdays star is looking blooming. But two seconds into our interview and she's already sharing all the gory details. 'Even moving my eyes made me feel sick,' she recalls, as she perches on a sofa in jeans and a Breton tee. 'I ended up lying on the floor with a bowl and I just couldn't move.' She shudders at the memory, but is determined not to let the nausea get in the way of her work commitments today, which involves hours of interviews about her latest charitable cause, Marie Curie's Superdrug FeelSuper campaign, which donates money from every P&G product sold at Superdrug to the charity.

'It's nice to be able to use your profile to help other people,' Frankie tells us. 'And having done Strictly, more people know who I am now, so hopefully more will take notice. Plus, it's a really easy campaign to get involved with, as you're just buying everyday products, and one product equals one donation.' Sounds good. And as Frankie chats openly about her home life with husband Wayne and son Parker, 18 months, one thing's certain – this woman never stops. Or at least, not without kicking up a fuss. After all, she's already had to give up her place on the Strictly tour due to the aforementioned morning sickness, and we can confirm that she's still not over the disappointment. 'My doctor instructed me to rest and not exercise, so dancing was completely out of the question,' she says, looking genuinely dejected. Then she pulls herself together and beams, adding that she's trying to stay positive by spending as much time as possible with her family before three becomes four in August. With Wayne at home following knee surgery, life doesn't sound too bad for the couple who married at Woburn Abbey last July after four years together. 'He's not one to shy away from changing a nappy!' Frankie says, as we ask about Wayne's parenting techniques. 'He's really hands-on, and Parker thinks his dad is the funniest thing ever.' Now, as Frankie prepares to find out whether she's having a boy or a girl ('I wish I could wait,' she grins. 'It seems so exciting, but I can't do it!'), she reveals what life is really like in the Bridge household, how she's changed since becoming a mum, and why The Saturdays will be back before we know it...

“I think it's important for dads to be at home. They need to bond with their babies, too”

Hi, Frankie! So, congratulations on your second pregnancy – how is it?

I feel a bit more excited this time – last time, I think I was excited and scared. It will be a challenge, because I have Parker, but you know that whole thing of thinking you have no idea what you're doing, and are going to be rubbish at it? That's kind of gone.

The Saturdays are sort of unique in the music industry, because three of you have young children. Does that affect your work?

Not really. It's difficult and definitely is a nightmare for everyone doing the schedules – I would hate that job! But we're lucky that we work with people who understand. My mum always worked, so that's the life I come from. You juggle it as you go along – I was meant to go to something the other day, but I couldn't find anyone to look after Parker, and that's just how it is.

Are you ever tempted to put your career on the back burner for a while?

I think stay-at-home mums are amazing – they're so busy. And I think

On her wedding day last July with husband Wayne and son Parker

With her chart-topping bandmates, The Saturdays

Getting her samba on with dance partner Kevin Clifton on last year's Strictly that if the people who say it's not hard work were to spend one day at home with a child, they'd see the things you have to do. But I love my job.

Your bandmate Una's husband Ben Foden has been campaigning for paternity leave to match maternity leave – do you agree with that?

In The Saturdays, we don't even really have maternity leave – it's not like a normal job. But I think it's important for dads to be at home as much as mums. They need to bond with their babies and get used to it, too. And it's hard for them as well – I know when I had Parker, Wayne was going backwards and forwards from training and games. It would be nice if people in general could have a little bit longer together.

Now Wayne's retired, it's almost like he's on paternity leave anyway...

Yeah! He's not very mobile at the moment as he's just had a knee operation. He's still hobbling around on crutches and can't do much, so I've been running around a lot more, but it's only for another couple of months. And it gives me peace of mind to know that if I'm not with Parker, then Wayne is or one of his grandparents are.

Has your style changed a lot since you became a mum?

Oh, trying to get ready is a minefield. It's hard to stay true to what you like and get used to your new body. I don't think I'd ever be seen in a pair of short shorts any more, and that's what I always used to wear. But what should I dress in instead? I used to put on four or five-inch heels to go to the shops, and I'd say I was never going to stop wearing them even when I had a baby. And now, realistically, that's not going to happen!

You still always look amazing...

By the end of most days, I'm covered in biscuits! On my wedding day, Parker was in the car with me on the way to the ceremony. I'd spent all this time getting ready – I had my veil on, I'd had my make-up done – and he was jumping all over me, pulling my hair and dribbling on my sister's bridesmaid dress. But it's all part of it, you know?

If we were to go shopping with you, where would you take us first?

Everything I own is from Zara or ASOS, or places like that, because I get bored of things so quickly. And [in the public eye] if you've been seen out in something a couple of times, then God forbid you wear it again! So you don't want to spend tonnes of money on something that you're only going to wear a couple of times. I love a good blazer and jeans, but I never like to feel like I've made too much of an effort.

I'd hate to walk into a room and be overdressed. Sunglasses are my most recent purchase, because when you're pregnant they're still going to fit!

Do you buy designer clothes for Parker?

Not really. I want him to have a little Burberry trench, because I think they're cute, but they're so expensive that it doesn't seem worth it.

You're glowing at the moment! Please say it's not all pregnancy hormones...

I alter my skincare routine all the time anyway, but when you're pregnant your skin does change.

Before Parker, I'd never get a shiny face, but I've had really bad skin this time around. I try to cleanse and tone, and have no-make-up days, but it's a vicious cycle – if you have bad skin, you want to cover it up, but then you don't want to put make-up on it, either.

Do you have any strange or quirky beauty rituals?

I only ever shampoo my hair; I don't condition. I just use Pantene – always have. My hair goes too soft if I condition, and I find it's shiny enough anyway.

Fair enough! What made you decide to get involved with the Superdrug/Marie Curie campaign?

As The Saturdays, we've done quite a bit with Marie Curie in the past already, so for me this seemed like quite an obvious thing to get involved with. We've had quite a few friends who've had terminal illnesses, and I've seen where the money goes and how much it's needed. It's vital that help and support is there.

You were a runner-up on Strictly last year – do you look back on the experience and feel proud?

That was the first thing I've ever done properly on my own. It was a big thing for me; it made me more confident. The funniest thing is how it's broadened the spectrum of who recognises me now – I have a lot of older people coming up to me, and it makes me laugh because a couple of months ago they wouldn't have cared who I was. It's really nice.

What's next for you? We've got our fingers crossed for some new Saturdays songs soon...

“Strictly was the first thing I've ever done properly on my own; it made me more confident”

Amazing Support

'Even when I did this photo shoot [for the campaign], some of the nurses had been up all night going to support so many families – it's a big job.'

Well, we're going into the studio this year to record some more music, but I just think it's always nice to try new things. I've been working for about 14 years, and the industry is always changing and you're always changing. That's the beauty of what I do – you're not stuck doing just one thing forever. But what those new things are at the minute, I don't know.

■ *Frankie Bridge is supporting the Superdrug and P&G FeelSuper Campaign to raise £100,000 for Marie Curie. Zara
£29.99

The 'Mixi' Skirt

- I'm talking about the new length that's not quite a maxi, but longer than a midi, and was a hit on the Paul & Joe SS15 catwalk.
- This shape is great with shirts. Try white for work, then darker denim for a more casual feel, and add chunky tan heels.

& Spencer

The Boxy Jacket

- The classic denim cover-up has been re-worked for 2015 in a modern, boxy fit. My tip? Look for big patch pockets on the front to nod to the utility trend, too.
- Contrast the shape with full frocks and skirts, or billowing palazzo pants.

The Culottes

- I'm still obsessed with this cropped, wide-legged shape, and denim is the perfect update on last season's leather.
- Head to Warehouse, Zara and Topshop to nail the trend, and wear with streamlined or cropped tops to balance out the voluminous shape.

Taylor & Calvin: It's On

He's Even Met The Parents!

Jay Z and Beyoncé had better watch out – Taylor Swift and Calvin Harris are totally on track to steal the power couple's music crown

When Calvin Harris put his hand on Taylor Swift's bum at the Brits after-party last month, the entire showbiz world took a sharp intake of breath – was the world's most in-demand (and hottest) DJ about to hook up with the pop queen of the moment (not to mention our biggest girl crush)? Well, sound the new couple alarm, because it's happening.

'Taylor's going for it,' our insider tells Look. 'She's been off the dating scene for so long, she's gone "Calvin crazy" since they started seeing each other.'

Just ten days after that Brits meeting, Taylor, 25, popped up in Calvin's DJ booth at Hakkasan nightclub in Las Vegas, where he has a weekly residency. And it was revealed that Calvin, 31, was the perfect gent, sending his private jet – part of his £270k-a-night deal with the club – to pick up Taylor and her friends, including Ellie Goulding and Selena Gomez.

'Calvin started calling her every day after that,' says our insider. 'He's so sweet. Taylor was wary of stepping on his ex Rita Ora's toes, but she's a sucker for his Scottish accent, and after Vegas she started taking him more seriously.'

'They talk all the time – and not just about music,' another friend revealed. 'Family, work, insecurities, even cooking – her baking, and his bangers and mash – they've totally connected.'

'She resisted him at first, because he told the world she wasn't her type,' adds a pal – referring to an interview last November in which Calvin said he would 'swipe left' if Taylor came up on Tinder. 'But she's completely let her guard down now and has even started calling him her boyfriend.'

After offering to cook for Taylor's family in Nashville, she and Calvin were spotted at Whole Foods Market

The pair also let their hair down at country singer Kenny Chesney's concert

She's always enjoyed the company that comes with having a man by her side. And while she's actually really enjoyed having a break from men since Harry Styles, she's "really happy with Calvin".

And pals say that he's equally smitten. 'Calvin's really surprised by Taylor – she's not at all like he imagined. He thinks she's got some incredible ideas and is really in awe of her.'

Now, in a bid to move things to the next level, Taylor took the huge step of asking Calvin to visit her childhood home in Nashville – to not only prove his commitment, but meet the parents, too. Despite having a hectic schedule – which includes flying from his LA home to Las Vegas three times a week to fulfil his DJ commitments, as well as numerous festivals and private gigs around the world – Calvin cleared his diary, and that's when Taylor might have realised he's 'The One'.

'Her dad, Scott, is one of the most protective fathers you could meet,' a source tells us. 'When she comes home, all boyfriends stay in their own bedroom and that's that. Until Taylor's married, she sleeps in her room, alone – end of story.

Calvin's really in awe of Taylor – she's not at all like he imagined

'He also insists on man-to-man time with all her boyfriends and that's when he grills them,' adds the source. 'Her dad told John [Mayer] he was too old and Jake [Gyllenhaal] he was going to break her heart – the same with Harry [Styles].'

But Calvin knew how to charm both of Taylor's parents. 'He brought flowers for her mum, Andrea, a bottle of Scotch for her dad, and was polite and quietly funny, but also not too showbiz,' our insider reveals. 'He was all about friendly eye-to-eye contact, which Scott appreciated.'

Picking her up in a private jet, impressing the parents – could Calvin be any more perfect? Apparently not. While staying at Taylor's parents'

Nashville home for two nights, he even offered to cook for the loved-up songstress and the pair were spotted shopping at Whole Foods Market that night. The next evening, he accompanied her to country singer Kenny Chesney's concert, where he spent most of the show with his arm around her. But even so, friends say Taylor is trying to still hold back.

'He's winning major points with her, but she's still worried about getting hurt. Even though she's trying to take it one step at a time, she just can't help herself,' says a pal. 'She's trying not to overthink it or get too far ahead of herself, but old habits die hard. She always moves too fast with guys and makes them her whole world before they really deserve it.'

And it's not like Taylor doesn't know about her reputation, singing: 'Got a long list of ex-lovers, they'll tell you I'm insane' in her recent song, Blank Space, but insiders say she's desperate to change that.

'Calvin's so laid-back and is letting her call all the shots, but she can't help push things along a little,' admits an insider. 'She's only got a small window of opportunity before she starts her world tour next month, so she's taking full advantage of that.'

'Of course, she's trying not to fall too hard for him, but Calvin's working his quietly spoken magic on her and she's smitten with him, big time.'

LOOK Debate

Can Praise From Men Stop Women Developing Eating Disorders?

After children's psychologist Dr Aric Sigman controversially revealed he believes men could be the key to help lower the rates of eating disorder diagnosis in teens, he debates his point with a former anorexic...

“Men Need To Make Women Feel Beautiful Whatever Their Size”

says Dr Aric Sigman

'When I was writing my new book The Body Wars, I came across overwhelming evidence that Meghan Trainor had a point in her song All About That Bass. Men certainly do not dislike pear shapes or muffin tops. In fact, they're far less critical about female fat. So I think it's time we harnessed this different perspective.

Female body image has, understandably, been dominated by women, but men are involved, too. Ninety per cent of men will have a wife/partner; half of all fathers have daughters; we also have mothers, sisters and female friends. And, increasingly, many men are forced to witness body dissatisfaction. Therefore, if the females they care about are unhappy about their bodies, we should encourage men to try to counteract this by offering a more positive view.

Sure, some ladies may not diet specifically in order to appeal to men, but the fact that so many of us approve of women's healthy body fat is a real part of life and may prove an additional weapon with which to fend off today's unhealthy downsizing culture.'

“He's Missing The Point – I Didn't Want Men To Like My Body”

says writer Daisy Buchanan

'Dr Sigman claims “knowing what men think can serve as an antidote to the prevailing assumptions that feed body dissatisfaction”. Or, in other words: “It's OK to eat cake, girls. Men prefer something to hold onto.”

As someone who used to suffer from anorexia, I know that male validation wouldn't have made me feel any happier. When puberty hit and boys commented on my boobs, I didn't feel better. In fact, one of the things I loved about getting thinner was that men stopped bothering me. Positive reinforcement from an uncle or grandfather wouldn't have helped that – any kind of male judgement made me feel out of control.

Instead of telling women to listen to men's positive comments about their bodies, we need to make sure men of all relation to us know we're much more than our looks in the first place. If Dr Aric wants to help, he can encourage people to stop thinking about whether we're hot or not in guys' eyes, and start talking about what we can do.'

of Mr Williams. And we want them all!

Adidas Superstar lace-ups have long been an essential part of any trainer fan's arsenal, but recently they've also become a must-have among the fash pack. From fashion editors to celebs like Rita Ora, every stylist worth their salt has invested in a pair of shell-toes. This season, though, there's a new style to know. Behold the Superstar Supercolor, created by none other than Pharrell Williams.

Instead of classic white or black, the just-launched kicks come in a rainbow of 50 colours, and are guaranteed to make you stand out from the crowd. According to Pharrell, individuality is what the Supercolors are all about. 'Everybody can select his or her colour,' he says. 'The Superstar is such an iconic shoe that's lasted for a long time, so I wanted to do something I hadn't seen.'

To celebrate the set-to-be-cult designs, Adidas hooked up with east London fashion photographer Lloyd Pursall for a seriously cool photo shoot on the streets of London's Hackney. This gave us plenty of inspo on how to style our statement sneaks – and there's not a lot you can't wear them with. That's definitely something to be happy about...

'Like J-Lo, I Had A Fake-Up To Boost My Career'

As Jennifer Lopez is accused of faking her break-up with Casper Smart to get attention, writer Laura Hills reckons we shouldn't be so quick to judge...

Sharing a kiss in Hollywood recently, J-Lo and on/off boyfriend Casper Smart looked like they'd put their very public split behind them. But if reports are to be believed, their two-year relationship may never actually have been over.

According to a source close to the couple, J-Lo and Casper faked their break-up – which came about after he was allegedly caught sexting two transsexual models – as a way to drum up publicity for J-Lo's latest film, Boy Next Door. But while some have been quick to judge the singer over the 'fake-up', I'll hold my hand up and admit that I can understand why the idea might have seemed appealing.

Entering into the media industry eight years ago – where it's as much about who you know as what you know – I pretended to be single in a vain attempt to boost my career. I didn't think I should flirt my way to the top – I was very happy with my boyfriend of six months, Sam* – but in a workplace that relied on schmoozing over sauvignon blanc and cancelling evening plans to stay late in the office, it seemed wise to pretend I didn't have a blossoming romance to distract me.

For the most part, my plan worked. My single, carefree façade meant I made friends quickly, and I was asked to try my hand at more things than my loved-up colleagues. At the start, Sam was surprisingly cool with it. He encouraged me to get myself established and seemed interested when I regaled him with tales from my nights networking. But his easygoing attitude wasn't to last.

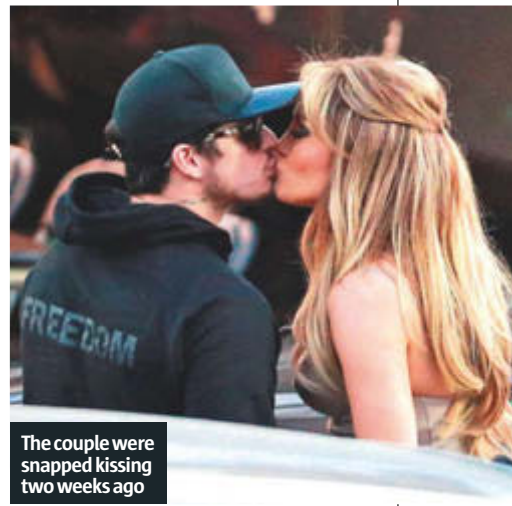

Relationship expert Rebecca Dakin isn't surprised. "Pretending to be single for your own gain proves that your relationship isn't your priority," she says. "Denying that a partner exists will likely lead to feelings of insecurity or even a split." Founder of Women In The City, Gwen Rhys, agrees: "Networking is key to building business relationships, but your ability to make a good impression has nothing to do with whether you're single. You do yourself no favours pretending to be something you're not."

They're right. Within a short time I'd vaulted rungs up the career ladder – but Sam and I broke up. And because I couldn't tell anyone at work about it, I really struggled.

It's only now with a bit of hindsight that I can see how wrong I was to think my "single" status had any real impact on my career. I know now that it was my drive and ambition that helped get me where I am today, not the fact people thought I had no ties.

Perhaps with two years under their belt at the time of their 'fake up', J-Lo and Casper had a stronger foundation to weather the time apart, but if my experience is anything to go by, it could all still end in tears.'

Davina McCall & Matthew Robertson

Davina, 47, surprised us all last week when she proudly announced that she had renewed her vows to her husband of 14 years, Matthew, at the Little White Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas. The bride wore a casual white playsuit and trainers while the couple's three children looked on – and they even wrote the wedding vows, too! Davina admitted that the ceremony was 'much more moving than I thought it would be.'

Our favourite couple might not be getting married any time soon, but that doesn't mean they aren't committed. Yep, Ellie, 28, and Dougie, 27, both popped off to a tattoo parlour last week to get matching skull and crossbones inked on their middle fingers. 'Til death do them part?

Cute alert! Angelina, 39, ditched hubby Brad to spend the evening with her gorgeous eldest daughters Zahara, ten, and Shiloh, eight, at The Nickelodeon Kids' Choice Awards in LA – and it's fair to say they had a ball. Her daughters were both overjoyed when Angelina was announced as the Favourite Villain (for Disney's Maleficent) and couldn't stop hugging her.

They also cheered loudly during her inspirational acceptance speech, where she reminded children everywhere that 'different is good'. Her radiant appearance comes only weeks after she took the decision to undergo life-altering surgery by having her ovaries and fallopian tubes removed, but it looks as if Ange is already back on top form. Can we get a big 'awwww' and then a round of applause, please?

Boxy Shapes

Take your cue from Amanda Wakeley's SS15 show and work white across minimal, mannish tailoring. By mixing white-on-white styling with a pair of silver brogues and a chambray shirt, this street styler takes a chic approach to the 'borrowed from the boys' look. We love.

All-In-One

Denim dungarees may be nothing new, but why not try giving yours a new-season update in stark white? A geometric-print blazer paired with accessories in a bold, primary palette will help add a splash of colour.

Colour Pop

It may be seen as a fashion faux pas, but matching your shoes to your bag is a simple way to add interest to an all-white look. This stylist's accessories instantly tone down the Daz effect of her skirt and sweater combo.

FAKE KIDNAPPING
AND RANSOM NOTES:

Did This Woman Fool A Nation?

On 23 March, Denise Huskins, now 30, was abducted. Seventy-two hours later she was accused of faking the whole thing. Look investigates the most confusing hoax of the 21st century

Denise's story has had the world gripped

'My name is Denise Huskins, I'm kidnapped,' gasped the voice down the phone. 'Otherwise [I'm] fine.' The police officer pauses and offers to play the recording again, but Mike Huskins doesn't need him to. He knows it's his daughter's voice. She's been missing for 24 hours and

Denise's boyfriend Aaron Quinn says he didn't contact police for nearly 12 hours as the captors had drugged him this is the first sign they've had that she's OK – she's alive. So far, so scary. But fast-forward two weeks and now, in a very strange turn of events reminiscent of Gillian Flynn's best-selling book and blockbuster film, Gone Girl, Denise is suddenly at the centre of her own police investigation. Because authorities claim her entire three-day ordeal – which saw hundreds of people search miles of wasteland, and her family release emotional plea after emotional plea – was all an 'orchestrated hoax'.

It all started on Monday 23 March when Denise's boyfriend Aaron Quinn, 30, reported the physiotherapist missing from their home in Vallejo, near San Francisco, at around 2pm. He claimed he had witnessed her being taken away in a white Toyota at around 3am that morning, but said he didn't contact police until the afternoon because her captors had drugged him. Alarm bells were already ringing but

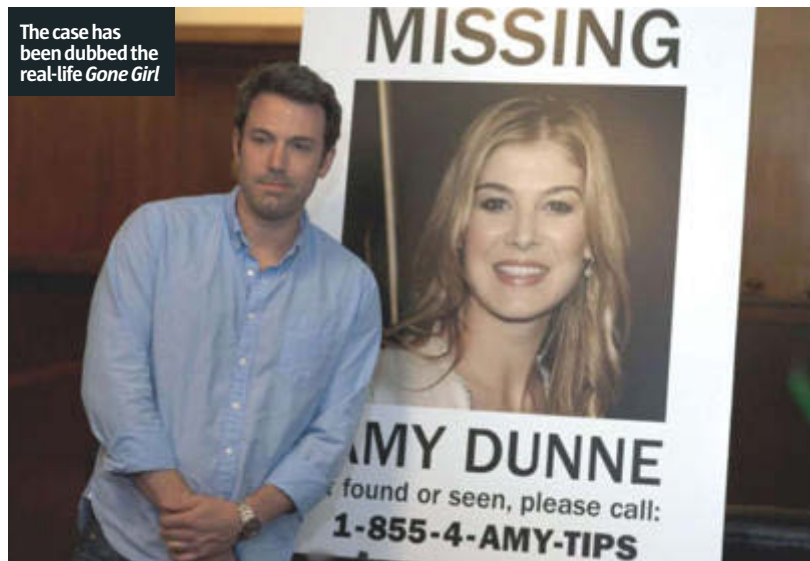

“If she sees this, I want her to know we love her and we are not giving up”

Denise's whereabouts were the priority. After a sleepless night for her friends and family, an anonymous caller contacted the San Francisco police department the next day with a ransom demand of approximately £6,000, and from there things escalated quickly. The police held a press conference releasing her picture to the media and her father was distraught. 'This is overwhelming to me,' he told reporters. 'I don't understand it... If she sees this, I want her to know, that the family is there, we love her and we're not giving up.'

Meanwhile, 40 detectives were assigned to the investigation and over 100 volunteers gathered to search the bay area near her home. And in the first of many parallels between this story and Gone Girl, Aaron was taken in for police questioning.

Later that day, the local paper received an email claiming to be from her captors, reinforcing the ransom demand, including details of Denise's wellbeing and their plan to release her. 'We will send a link to her location after she has been dropped off,' read the message. 'She will be in good health and safe while she waits... Any advance on us or our associates will create a dangerous situation for Denise.' Accompanied by the audio clip, concerns for Denise began to grow and the world began to take an interest.

However, the next morning, Mike

“There is no evidence that this was a stranger abduction”

Huskins received a call from Denise herself. 'She wasn't crying at all,' he said, sounding relieved. 'She just said: "Daddy, I'm OK."' He explained that Denise had told him that she had been dropped off at her mother's house in Huntington Beach, 420 miles from her home. When no one answered the door, she said she had walked 12 blocks to his house, where a neighbour found her and called 911.

The search was called off and the small town of Vallejo was able to breathe a sigh of relief. Or so they thought. On what should have been a day of celebration, things took a dramatic turn when the police suddenly released this statement: 'Today, there is no evidence to support the claims that this was a stranger abduction or an abduction at all. Given the facts that have been presented thus far, this appears to be an orchestrated event and not a crime.'

It was revealed that Denise had agreed to be questioned about her abduction by the FBI, who had arranged for a private jet to return her to San Francisco. But she didn't turn up for the flight. She went quiet, refusing to speak to police, and hiring a lawyer. And while police would not give any details about their suspicions, they confirmed Denise and her boyfriend Aaron were now being investigated: 'If evidence indicates that either Ms Huskins or Mr Quinn have committed a criminal act, the Vallejo Police Department will request either state or federal charges,' a statement said.

It's chilling stuff, but while Denise's family are sticking by her, friends have begun to voice their doubts. Bethany Brass, who has known Denise since she was a child, told Look exclusively that she is 'completely shocked' by the events, which were 'completely out of character'.

'Denise has been a good friend of mine for over 20 years,' Bethany told us. 'Out of respect for my friend, I will not speculate about what may have gone on but she has never been an attention seeker. [She's] always been a strong, independent and motivated woman but she is obviously suffering from something. I am deeply saddened that something in her life drove her to such desperate measures and wish I hadn't been so distracted. I should have been there for her.'

Denise's 'Abduction' Timeline

Monday

23 March

3am Denise is reportedly kidnapped from her home, witnessed by her boyfriend Aaron.
1.55pm Aaron contacts police and reports her abduction.

Tuesday 24 March

12 noon The Chronicle paper receives an email from her captors, with an audio clip purportedly from Denise.

2pm A press conference is held and Denise's picture is released to the press.

Denise says she was taken to Huntington Beach, California

Wednesday 25 March

9.30am Mike Huskins receives a call from his daughter. She tells him she's safe in Huntington Beach.

12 noon The FBI arrange for Denise to be flown back to San Francisco, but she doesn't get on the flight.

9pm Investigators claim there's no evidence Denise was kidnapped and release a statement saying it appears to have been an 'orchestrated event'.

Denise's father Mike

Thursday 26 March

10am Aaron Quinn denies involvement in the hoax.

12 noon Denise's attorney says she is the victim of kidnapping.

AIDAN TURNER: 'I Wasn't Wearing Any Underwear Filming Poldark!'

Our Sunday nights have been a whole lot, well, sexier since the arrival of Aidan as Ross Poldark. We found out more about the Irish hunk...

It may look like we're on our sofa on a Sunday at 9pm. And yes, those may appear to be pyjamas we are wearing. But your eyes deceive you, for we're actually on the Cornish moors, dressed in a flowing frock, with an ever-so-dashing army captain riding a trusty steed beside us. Such is the power of the brilliant BBC drama, Poldark, in which we are transported to Cornwall in the 1700s. And it's all thanks to Aidan Turner.

The Dublin-born actor (who is best known for The Hobbit trilogy and BBC3's Being Human) has stepped into the role of Ross Poldark, a war hero who returns home to Cornwall to find his father dead, the family estate in ruins and the love of his life betrothed to his cousin. The story follows him as he tries to rebuild his life (and, at points, walls, too – which he does rather pleasingly with his top off), while battling with his feelings for old flame Elizabeth and new love interest, maid Demelza (Eleanor Tomlinson). And trust us, it's Aidan, 31, who makes this the seriously sexy period drama our Sunday nights have been waiting for. With that in mind, we decided to find out a few facts about the man himself...

The Irish hunk got in tip-top shape for the role of Poldark – no complaints here!

He Bared A Lot Of Skin For Poldark

Not only did he have to go shirtless for a fair few scenes in Poldark (hurrah!), he had to go sans-pants, too. 'They didn't wear underwear at the time [when Poldark is set], so it made it quite difficult to shoot some of the stuff we did. They would just wear the shirt and then tuck it in around,' he says. Cor!

'Long-Distance Love Keeps Things Fun'

'[Long-distance] is all we've ever known,' he says about his three-year romance with actress Sarah Greene, 29. 'It makes for good times when we meet up and have a month straight where we're unemployed and watching movies every day. It's fun to laze around and do normal things.'

Aidan and girlfriend Sarah Greene have been together for three years

'Ed Sheeran Is My Drinking Buddy'

The pair met when Ed recorded a song for The Hobbit: Desolation Of Smaug and struck up a friendship. 'We got on and he invited me to see him in Belfast,' says Aidan. 'The other night we got really ped and went back to his house and I made him sing songs. He was playing at the Victoria's Secret fashion show the next day. He was hungover, I think!'

He's A Champion Ballroom Dancer

One of Aidan's little-known talents is dancing. He competed in Latin American and Ballroom for ten years, and once represented Ireland. In fact, he was such a twinkle toes, his dancing teacher pushed him to go professional, but his parents couldn't afford it. So he became an actor instead. Thankfully.

He's A Fully Qualified Dwarf

For his role as dwarf Kili in The Hobbit films, he took on weeks of 'dwarf movement classes' (seriously). 'They're kind of like antenatal classes,' he joked. 'But with a lower sense of gravity!'

'I Quit Professional Snooker For Drama School'

After a stint of working with his electrician dad, Aidan considered becoming a professional snooker player but that seemed 'way more far-fetched than trying to become an actor.' When he noticed a sign for the Gaiety School of Acting in his hometown of Dublin, he decided to give it a go.

■ Poldark is on BBC1 every Sunday at 9pm

'I Can Do Anything A Man Can Do'

There are hundreds of Army roles open to women. Zoe – currently training to be a Troop Commander with the Royal Signals – explains why we shouldn't be afraid to sign up

'I love that no day in the Army is ever the same'

'I only began training with the Army in January 2013 – I started in the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst. It was hard work from the outset, but the training is second-to-none – everyone knows it sets you up for life. And in spite of my initial fears, being female has never been an issue. I'm encouraged to do anything a man can do, and when I first joined up, I was in a platoon with 30 other women, so there was always someone else feeling the same way, who I could talk to if things got tough. You experience so much together that they become your best friends.

After Sandhurst, I started training to become a Troop Commander with the Royal Signals in Dorset. So far it's been amazing – I get to do so much stuff, including participating in the Commonwealth Games in Scotland as part of the regiment that provided security and communications. The social life is pretty good, too – there are plenty of black-tie balls, so we get to dress up and feel very glamorous. Plus keeping fit is an essential part of Army life, so there are loads of opportunities to try new sports. There's also 'Adventurous Training', which gives you amazing experiences in situations such as skiing, climbing or parachuting. You can even compete at the very highest level in your sport of choice. I love that no day is ever quite the same.

Of course, I've had moments when things have been hard, and I've sometimes wondered if I'm cut out for the job – I'm training to be a Troop Commander, and it's quite daunting to realise that you're going to have to take responsibility for looking after the lives of 30 or 40 other people. But everybody pulls together, and you're encouraged to ask for help if you need it, which means you never feel like you're on your own. I know I've only been doing this for two years, but I have no idea what else I would do with my life if I wasn't in the Army.'

My Day

■ 'Lesson-based training begins at 8.30am and tends to finish by 4.30pm.'

■ 'Topics vary each week, from learning about the kit and equipment to helping my soldiers progress in their careers.'

■ 'Once the lessons are over, it's time to do the physical training.'

New season = new bags.
Yay! Meet the arm-candy updates
you need to know about now...

Clutches Go3D

Appliqué petals are
right and centre this season.
Here's how to style yours...

- DO use them for day – the pale shades mean they're not too glitzy. Try with jeans and a pastel top.
- DON'T overshadow them with extra accessories. One more statement piece is OK, but anything more is overkill.
- DO team with appliqué dresses and tops for a standout summer wedding or party look.

Add Oomph With A Candy Envelope

As the street-style set show, bright mini cross-body bags in neon and Crayola colours are the ultimate way to add fun to any spring look. The trick is to let them hang front and centre so they're the main attraction. Styling-wise, you can either clash it against muted shades or work two of the same for a double whammy. Want extra style kudos? Pop on a statement bag charm.

Fringe Up Your Backpack

Just in time for festival season, the on-the-money backpack shape has had a tassel-tastic update. Here are three ways to style yours...

ASOS

- 1 On the festival field, wear with printed boho dresses or denim cut-offs and peasant blouses.
- 2 For a chic take, try yours with tailored co-ords or a prim midiskirt.
- 3 Shoe-wise, avoid anything too dainty – think edgy mules or stacked heels.

Saddle Up In Spring's 'It' Shape

The classic saddle bag is enjoying a major revival – and this time, pastels reign supreme.

- Shaped like a horseshoe with a flap front and long strap, saddles can be worn cross-body or slung over one shoulder.
- Wear with denim flares and a suede biker jacket for an on-trend weekend look.
- DP's plaited, bow-front number is a spot-on homage to Chloé's 'Marcie'.

Bronze Up Your Day Bag

Yep, metallics are no longer just for after dark. The new way to showcase your shimmer is with oversized, day-friendly shopper and tote styles. Look for details like gold metal hardware, laser cuts and tassels to add to the luxe feel, and wear with casual combos for a cool contrast.

- Avoid metallic shoes – go for on-trend suede styles instead.

The New Lace Rules Are In

From pretty pastels to gemstone brights, this trend is easy to nail and will see you right through to summer

Sunshine Yellow

Shades of yellow work really well on dark skin tones, and will brighten up any outfit. This long-line lace top is perfect tucked into high-waisted peg-leg trousers. Keep accessories punchy and bright.

Preppy Pleats

Perfect for the office, this A-line skirt will work its magic with a simple tee or shirt. Worn on or below the knee, show off those pins with strappy sandals in a tonal colour. Finish with a satchel.

Box-Print Jacket

If you want to wear lace in a more modern way, look for digital prints on oversized garments. Make sure you balance proportions and wear a fitted dress or pencil skirt underneath the jacket.

The New Shirt

A lace shirt is your casual wardrobe update for spring. Wear open over a camisole or buttoned through for a formal look. Give your outfit a vintage spin by pairing with some 70s flared jeans and platforms.

Rock A Co-Ord

Great for smaller frames, this zingy matching top and skirt will turn heads! Try the pencil with a slogan tee tucked in for a more low-key look and throw on some brightly coloured flatfoms.

Statement Skirt

Green and lace? This skirt ticks trends aplenty. For work, add a classic white shirt and a fitted blazer; and wear with a loose knitted jumper for the weekend. Make sure the skirt is worn on the waistline for a flattering fit.

Lace All-In-One

Sexy, simple and under £80, this jumpsuit is one to watch out for. With a wide leg and plunging neckline, Dolce & Gabbana will be wriggling in their seats! Keep accessories bold – chic, printed heels are a must.

How To Work Relaxed

From printed slouchy slacks to floaty fringed kimonos, Matalan's SS15 collection has

Go Indigo

Dress down a floral frock by layering a staple white T-shirt underneath. Why not get into a blue mood and take the dress's indigo hues across your bag, jacket and jewellery too, for a full-on colour coordinated look.

On-Trend Tassels

Get ready for this year's festival fever with an embellished, fringed kimono. A crochet jumper will ensure you're on trend for the season, while patent plimsolls keeps things cool and casual.

Boho

laid-back luxe nailed

Easy Does It

Nothing says boho like lace details and Moroccan-inspired mosaic prints. Whether you're hitting the high street or jetting off to sunnier shores, this cream cami and harem pants combo offers an easy-breezy look.

Filorga BB-Perfect, £35

1 The Party-Proof Formula

Tester: Rose Owens, Art Editor

The Claim: To last from morning until night, without any touch-ups, while also having a light, matte finish.

The Verdict: 'As I leave the house at 7.30am and don't get home until late, my foundation needs to stick with me. One drop of Nars All Day Luminous Weightless Foundation [£32] covered my whole face. It's got an amazing matte finish, comes in 20 shades, and doesn't look cakey. I applied it in the morning and by dinner I still didn't need to reapply. I was impressed.'

2 The Youth-Boosting Powder

Tester: Sarah Barlow, Freelance Fashion Assistant

The Claim: The first light-feel powder foundation with added skincare benefits that makes skin look younger in just three weeks.

The Verdict: 'Diorskin Nude Air Compact Powder [£35] covered my large pores and balanced out my uneven skin tone, yet also gave a natural finish. I trialed it in windy conditions and, although it didn't stay crease-free as well as I expected, it stayed put the second time I tried it, thanks to a spritz of setting spray.'

3 The Dewy Serum Foundation

Tester: Claire Sanderson, Assistant Editor

The Claim: Packed with anti-ageing ingredients, it's as good as your serum but with foundation coverage.

The Verdict: 'If Bobbi Brown Intensive Skin Serum Foundation SPF40 [£39] can plump up my tired skin, I'm in. The coverage was lighter than my normal base, but a little goes a long way and I could build it up. Although it wasn't that long-lasting, my skin looks more glowy one week on, so the anti-ageing does work.'

4 The Radiance Reviver

Tester: Victoria Jowett, Freelance Beauty Assistant

The Claim: With instant perk-me-up ingredients, this will make you look as if you've just had a facial.

The Verdict: 'When it comes to my base, I'm more of a BB or CC cream kind of girl, so I was excited about Caudalie Vinoparfect Radiance Tinted Moisturizer SPF20 [£27]. It's really hydrating, so I didn't need moisturiser, and the light, dewy formula made my skin look radiant.'

5 The 'One Shade Suits All' CC Cream

Tester: Hannah Wilson, Designer

The Claim: With clever technology, this white/grey cream transforms to match all skin tones.

The Verdict: 'I found Erborian CC Crème SPF 25 [£16.50] really easy to apply, but couldn't believe it would suit everyone – it did. I gave it to my sister, who's slightly fairer than me, and my best friend who's darker, and it looked flawless on all of us. The medium coverage was perfect for my slightly oily skin. I'm sold!'

6 The Brilliant Budget Matte Base

Tester: Amy Ward, Freelance Picture Researcher
The Claim: This price-friendly, creamy foundation will ace all other shine-busting formulas.

The Verdict: 'Bourjois Nude Sensation

Foundation [£9.99] gave a matte finish that looked so natural and almost dewy, which is normally hard to achieve with my combination skin. As the coverage was so light, I had to add concealer. The shade selection isn't huge, but this was a great match for me.'

7 The Velvet-Finish Powder

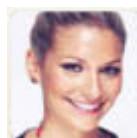

Tester: Hannah Banks-Walker, Freelance Fashion News Assistant

The Claim: The fine powder particles have been designed to melt into skin for a velvet finish.

The Verdict: 'I was so impressed with the silky feel of Urban Decay Naked Skin Ultra Definition Powder Foundation [£26]. I applied it with the sponge applicator and found the more you buffed it in, the better the coverage and finish. There are 14 shades, so there's something for everyone.'

8 The Selfie-Smooth Foundation

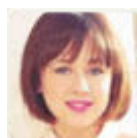

Tester: Samantha Freedman, Beauty Editor

The Claim: The added pearl pigments help light bounce off skin in all the right places.

The Verdict: 'I'm constantly looking for a base that looks good in real life and photos, and Laura Mercier Silk Crème Photo Edition Foundation [£35] is the answer. It comes in 12 shades, and, using a foundation brush to minimise streaks, it covered blemishes without looking heavy.'

9 The Second-Skin Water Base

Tester: Gemma Gow, Deputy Fashion News Editor

The Claim: A super-light formula that gives an airbrushed effect, perfect for combination skin.

The Verdict: 'With a claim to mimic "second skin", I was keen to give Kiko Liquid Skin Second Skin Foundation [£18.90] a try. Using the handy pipette, I dropped some into my palms, then smoothed it on. It blurred my pores, mattified my T-zone and nourished dry patches.'

10 The Anti-Ageing Glow Booster

Tester: Maria Coole, Deputy Editor

The Claim: Glow-enhancing, lightweight and packed with so many skincare benefits, you can skip moisturiser. Perfect for non-foundation fans.

The Verdict: 'I don't usually wear a base, so I was sceptical about Filorga BB-Perfect [£35]. I didn't want anything too heavy, but this covered the areas prone to redness perfectly. After applying it with my fingers, it distributed evenly and made my skin look like mine, but better. It now has a lovely dewy finish.'

REINVENT RED LIPS

Take a classic lip and re-spin it with modern-day textures. Max Factor Make-up Artist Caroline Barnes shows you how to recreate three iconic red looks Marilyn Monroe was a beauty icon of her day. Her strong eye flick and flawless red lip became synonymous with Hollywood glamour. This look is just as hot today, seen across celebrity red carpets and on catwalks at every Fashion Week.

'Red lipstick is as popular now as it was in the 40s,' says Max Factor Make-up Artist Caroline Barnes. 'It's the one product you can apply that transforms your look with minimum effort.'

Try modernising your red lips with these 2015 touches.

Max Factor Colour Elixir Lipstick in Ruby Tuesday

3D FINISH

Want a brand-new trick?

Choose a classic red like Max Factor Colour Elixir Lipstick in Ruby Tuesday, then use a metallic eyeshadow to add subtle highlights.

Caroline says: 'Blot the lipstick, then pat the eyeshadow into the centre of your lip and over your Cupid's bow.'

VELVET KISS

A matte finish is all about plush texture. Prep is key to ensure your lips aren't dry, so apply a little moisturising balm before you start. Then try Max Factor Colour Elixir Lip Liner in Red Rush for a base with longevity. Fill your lips and then blot. 'Apply a matching lipstick. Make sure lots of pigment is on the lips,' says Caroline. 'Re-blot, then dab on translucent powder using an eyeshadow brush.' Keep eyes low key with minimal eyeshadow and apply Max Factor False Lash Effect Mascara to top lashes.

VINYL EFFECT

Get a red lip that's so high shine, it's almost reflective.

Begin with a layer of lipstick, blot, then apply a slick of gloss. 'Use a high-shine formula like Max Factor Colour Elixir Lip Gloss in Polished Fuchsia and push to the edge of the lip,' Caroline says. 'Be careful not to overload, as it may bleed.' Pair with fresh-looking skin. Use Max Factor Face Finito All Day Flawless 3 In 1 Foundation.

Crimp Up Your Ponytail

It's time to dig out your old crimpers, ladies, because Stella McCartney has given the humble ponytail a major update...

Stella McCartney gave our lazy-day hairdo, the classic pony, a serious makeover this season – and we're so grateful. The low-slung ponytail is no longer a sign of a late night or a rushed morning (c'mon, we've all been there) – instead, it's been reinvented and has since stormed up the fashion charts. Thank you, Stella!

At her SS15 show, models' ponies were instantly updated with the addition of cool, crimped sections. The clever style is mega easy to recreate, so we're hailing it our new favourite 'do. Here's how to cheat the look...

Your Crimping Kit

1 Make sure your hair is parted slightly off-centre. Then, take three one-inch-wide pieces from either side and section them off.

2 Using BaByliss 2165BU Pro Hair Crimper, £19.99, crimp each section of hair, starting from the roots right down to the tip.

3 Tie all your hair with an elastic at the nape of your neck. Then, take random pieces of straight hair and crimp the mid-lengths to add extra texture.

4 Finish by misting some Lee Stafford Argan Oil Flexible Hold Hairspray, £9.99, over your hair to keep the crimps intact.

Look Reader
Kelly Jade Williams

1 Dolce & Gabbana Passion Duo Gloss Fusion Lipstick in Infatuation

Look's Sam: The glossy formula kept my lips looking soft and feeling smooth, but the centre of the stick didn't contrast with the outer red as much as I'd have liked. It does come in lots of different shades, though.

Kelly Jade: I liked the colour and it was really long lasting, but it looked more like I was wearing a plain lipstick rather than a two-tone one. The shades are a bit too similar to work as a contour.

£27.50

2 Mary Kay At Play Triple Layer Tinted Lip Balm in In The Plum

Look's Sam: This buttery balm left a more sheer wash of colour than the others, but after a few layers, my lips were a pretty purple shade. The formula was super conditioning, although it didn't do much in terms of pout plumping.

Kelly Jade: I liked how hydrating this was – it soothed my chapped lips instantly, but it took a lot of coats to show up and the purple wasn't really dark enough to define my lips. It smelt amazing, though.

3 Topshop Lip Ombre in Perplex

Look's Sam: Topshop's new Lip Ombre is amazing. You need to use a lip brush as it comes in a dual compact not a stick, but once on, the mega-pigmented colour stayed put all day. I was even complimented on how fantastic my lips looked – definitely a keeper.

Kelly Jade: I loved this product. The bright pink and coral shades worked perfectly together and really made my pout stand out. It was easy to apply and the compact allowed for easy blending once it was on.

Which Festival Will You Hit Up?

Time to dig out your tent – here's our pick of the hottest festivals this year

The Secret One

FLOW festival, 14-16 August, Finland

Headline highlights: Florence and the Machine, Alt-J and Beck

The FLOW festival is more than able to stand up against its rival heavyweights. Offering up an eclectic mix of music from across Europe, it's an international affair. Head here for a dose of chilled escapism with a culture kick.

FLOW: home to great music and tasteful lighting

The Hipster One

Secret Garden Party, 23-26 July, Cambridgeshire

Headline highlights: Jungle, The Cat Empire and Caravan Palace

This one's for the kooky kids (though their website says: 'Sadly we cannot accommodate hovercrafts, unicorns or camel trains,' so that's us out). Hot-dog eating contests, mud wrestling and dance-offs are the order of the day.

You'd better not be hiding a unicorn in there, guys

You still need your five a day at a festival – no, cider doesn't count

The Foodie One

The Big Feastival, 28-30 August, The Cotswolds

Headline highlights: Paloma Faith, Ella Eyre, Groove Armada

With delicious demos from top chefs including Hemsley + Hemsley, the legendary Street Food Alley jam-packed with more munch than you could shake a spoon at and a rustic artisan food and drink market, Jamie Oliver and Alex James present every foodie's paradise – so bring your knife and fork.

Hmm, looks like the lighting guy's been in the beer tent

The Hippy One

Latitude, 16-19 July, Suffolk

Headline highlights: Noel Gallagher's High Flying Birds and Laura Marling

Music and culture collide as the UK's first multi-arts boutique festival hits its 10th run. Comedy, poetry, film, musical and theatre acts all combine to create something for everyone. Plus this year there are hot tubs. HOTTUBS.

The Last Five Years

Fancy a show-stopping musical that will have you laughing, sobbing and, indeed, singing in the cinema? This one's for you. Starring the ever-so-wonderful Anna Kendrick, TLFY looks back at a relationship and all that went wrong but, you know, in a cheery, sing-along way. If you hadn't already guessed, it's a bit twee. And awesome with it.

LOOK Competition

Win VIP Festival Tickets & A Shopping Spree

Take a friend to the New Look Wireless Festival and bag yourself a £100 voucher

Kick off summer in style at the New Look Wireless Festival in London

Celebrating its tenth year, the New Look Wireless Festival is back with a vengeance at Finsbury Park, London, on 3-5 July 2015. With headline acts including Drake, A$AP Rocky and David Guetta, you'd be foolish to miss out on the biggest event of the summer.

Luckily for you, we're giving away a pair of VIP weekend tickets, a meal for two at east London's biggest trending BBQ restaurant HotBox and a £100 complimentary gift voucher to spend at high-street store New Look to make sure you're looking fresh for the festival weekend. All you need to do is work out who you're going to take with you...

TERMS AND CONDITIONS: Open to residents of the UK aged 18 or over, excluding employees of New Look Wireless, Live Nation and their agents. Competition opens on 7 April 2015 and closes at midnight on 21 April 2015. To enter, users need to follow competition mechanic provided by Look. Prizes: Two VIP weekend tickets to New Look Wireless, dinner for two people at HotBox London and one £100 New Look gift voucher. Winner must be available to take the prize on 3-5 July 2015.

The Prize Includes

- One pair of VIP weekend tickets to New Look Wireless Festival.
- A meal for two at HotBox restaurant in east London.
- A New Look gift voucher worth £100.

Aries

21 March – 20 April

You like this time of year because for you, the birthday girl, it's party time! You haven't been as sociable as usual over the last few weeks, but now you're ready to make up for it and come into your own.

LOOK OUT: Don't fear the (rather positive) changes this week.

Virgo

24 August – 23 September

If you're single, you may get a sudden urge to find romance. However, if you're happy on your own, don't give in to this new craving for a relationship or you risk a clingy encounter.

LOOK OUT: Steer clear of control freaks for a hassle-free week.

Call for more*: 09058 171285

ROI readers call: 156 078 7831

Libra

24 September – 23 October

You're doing amazing things and not asking for anything in return, but this week you need to start appreciating just how marvellous you are. At work, it's time to stand up and be counted; at home, you need to put your foot down.

LOOK OUT: Be more confident.

ROI readers call: 156 078 7832

Capricorn

22 December – 20 January

Some days at work are so hard, you feel like you're walking through treacle. However, this week something changes and everything shifts into place.

After that, you're a happy bunny! LOOK OUT: Try to remember that you don't always know best.

Call for more*: 09058 171289

ROI readers call: 156 078 7835

Aquarius

21 January – 19 February

You've been feeling insecure and uncertain about some areas of your life. However, in others, you couldn't be more sure. Money might cause you a few wobbles, but you'll sort out your minor debts in no time.

LOOK OUT: The truth will surface.

Taurus

21 April – 21 May

Although it's spring, you're preparing to hibernate. Home is where the heart is for you right now and you're having fun making your living space cosy.

LOOK OUT: Believe in yourself more. Deep down, you always know what's best for you.

Call for more*: 09058 171281

Cancer

22 June – 23 July

You can be self-centred, but this week you're paying attention to others. If you get the urge to start a petition or do some charity work, why not go for it? You have the power to really make a difference.

LOOK OUT: Don't hide from your problems – they'll soon find you.

Call for more*: 09058 171283

Scorpio

24 October – 22 November

Everything is settled on the domestic front now, so you're free to look at what else needs sorting. Work is your top priority, followed by your social life – now you can give them both the attention they need.

LOOK OUT: Remember to keep that bit of gossip to yourself.

Pisces

20 February – 20 March

Things are set to change, so you may need to slow down on the partying and spend some time recharging your batteries. Concentrate on your health, diet, and losing any bad habits.

LOOK OUT: Ignore that party invite and pamper yourself instead.

COMPETITIONS: TERMS & CONDITIONS Normal Time Inc. (UK) Ltd competition rules apply. Competition details form part of these terms and conditions. Entry is open to residents of the UK and excludes the Republic of Ireland. Entry is not open to employees (and their families) of Time Inc. (UK) Ltd, its printers and agents, the suppliers of the prizes and any other companies associated with the competitions. The winners (and their companions where relevant) must be aged 18 or over. Proof of identity and age may be required. Use of a false name or address will result in disqualification. No responsibility can be accepted for entries lost, damaged or delayed in the post. The prizes are as stated, are not transferable and no cash alternatives will be offered. Winners are responsible for expenses and arrangements not specifically included in the prizes, including any necessary travel documents, passports and visas. Prizes are subject to availability and the suppliers' terms and conditions. The promoters reserve the right to amend or alter the terms of competitions. No purchase necessary. The winners will be chosen from all correct entries received by the closing date. The decision of the judges is final and no correspondence will be entered into. Competitions may be modified or withdrawn at any time. Time Inc. (UK) Ltd, the publisher of Look, will collect your personal information to process your entry and to gain a better understanding of its magazine readership. *Only tell us your email address if you would like to receive emails from Time Inc. (UK) Ltd containing news, special offers and product and service information and take part in magazine research. Time Inc. (UK) Ltd would like to contact you by post or phone to promote our products and services and ask your opinion on our magazines. Please write 'No Look' if you prefer not to hear from Time Inc. (UK) Ltd. We may pass on your details to carefully selected organisations so that they can contact you by telephone or post with regard to promoting and researching their products and services. Please write 'No other companies' if you prefer not to receive such offers. Online competitions are hosted on Look.co.uk. Visit <http://comps.look.co.uk/rules.php> for terms and conditions.

Michelle Goldie

Creative director at Goldie London and Wyldr

Michelle's Top Tips

- My must-have item this spring is a pair of high-waisted jeans. The cut makes your legs look longer, and we all want longer legs, right?
- When it comes to shopping, I'm a big 'mixer'. I'll splash out on expensive bags and shoes, but wear them with high-street pieces for an eclectic look. Plus, I'm always on the look out at car-boot sales and thrift stores for amazing and unique vintage finds.
- I'm a big fan of statement jackets, and the 'Girl Gang' embroidered bomber from Goldie's SS15 collection is my absolute fave. It's the perfect combo of casual and glam, and goes with everything.

I made my first collection from my bedroom. . .

...when I launched Goldie in 2004. I sold my designs at Portobello Market, and it just got bigger and bigger from there. Now we have our own e-shop and are stocked on ASOS and in Topshop.

My job involves anything creative.

I design each seasonal collection for both Wyldr and Goldie, manage the whole sampling process from start to finish, organise all photo shoots and compile the look books.

Alexa Chung is my style muse.

It would be a dream come true to see her dressed in one of my designs. I also look to Erin Wasson for inspo – I love her effortless, laid-back look.

I find inspiration everywhere. . .

...particularly when travelling. I visit Asia at least four times a year for work, but always make sure I take time out when I'm there to switch off.

Follow me. . .
